

Nests of Black-throated Blue Warblers at Hubbard Brook are clustered in certain places, even when an entire large area of the Hubbard Brook Experimental Forest is dense with shrubs. Does this indicate that something besides shrub density influences where birds establish territories?

Average number of songs sung by successful and unsuccessful breeding male birds over time

